There is a common misconception that jobs in the academic system, as elsewhere, are often already earmarked for particular – especially internal – applicants. Very often, however, the job advertisement is serious and the race is open: The search is on for the best person for the position in question. The quality of the application is therefore crucial in order to be invited to an interview. Since, depending on the specific “market situation”, there are sometimes many candidates competing for a small number of positions, it is important to stand out with an excellent application.

This counselling offer is aimed at doctoral and postdoctoral researchers who are pursuing an academic career and would like to polish their application documents – regardless of whether the aim is to prepare for future application procedures in general or specifically for a current job application. We will take a look at your existing application documents together and work out potential for optimisation with regard to the presentation of your relevant qualifications and previous experience as well as the structure and design of your documents. There will also be ample opportunity to address your specific questions and uncertainties.

Please specify in the comments field of our registration form when a counselling appointment would be suitable for you. We will then get back to you with specific date options.
