

Grade Conversion using the Bavarian Formula

Please enter the maximum grade, the minimum passing grade and your current overall grade in the grading system of your University in the form below. This will be used to convert your grade into the German grading scale for easier comparison, using the so-called Bavarian Formula.

Please fill out the form using numbers with two decimals. If your grading system does not use numbers, convert your scale to a numerical scale first (for example, a letter-based scale may be converted like this: A+ = 1, A = 2, B = 3,...).

Maximum / best grade at your university

Minimum passing grade at your university

Your current overall grade at your university

Your grade converted to the German system *

 This automatic calculation only works properly using Adobe Reader. Depending on the PDF-Tool you use, the grade conversion to the German system might not be displayed automatically within this form. This is not a problem. Please upload the form anyway; indicating maximum, minimum and current grade. The grade conversion will then be calculated during the evaluation process within our university system.*

Please note that during the application process your official university documents will be checked as well. The here presented grade conversion is therefore only intended to provide a first orientation.

Comments

If you are not sure about filling out this form correctly or want to alert us to possible conversion issues, feel free to add relevant comments here.