Getting Out of Comfort Zone (GOOCZ)

Getting Out of Comfort Zone (GOOCZ) – an Erasmus+ Cooperation Partnership in Higher Education – is designed to give academic staff first-hand experience and raise consciousness of the diversity, complexity, challenges of the industrial setting, particularly in green transition and digitalisation, so that they ensure that student learning and curriculum foster understanding and competencies for the societal, industrial challenges they will meet in employment helping to bridge the gap between academia and industry.

GOOCZ objectives are to:

- Enhance academics' understanding of industry work environment, challenges and unmet skill requirements
- Develop relevant learning and teaching to prepare graduates for current and future work
- Connect universities across borders, strengthening cooperation between academia and industry

GOOCZ achieves its objectives through high-quality, state-of-the-art pedagogical development:

- Get Out of Your Comfort Zone: A 5 ECTS interdisciplinary pedagogical development company attachment programme (IO1).
- Get Your Curricula Out of Comfort Zone: A 3 ECTS interdisciplinary pedagogical development programme (IO2). It builds on IO1's learning.
- Getting Out of Comfort Zone case-book

GOOCZ's outputs and outcomes:

- Capacity building and competence
- Relevant, responsive, change-oriented higher education curricula
- Sustainable staff development programmes

GOOCZ invites participants such as:

- Junior and senior faculty; Members of staff actively engaged in curriculum development and enhancement

GOOCZ is delivered by a dynamic international consortium consisting of:

Aalborg University (Denmark, Project Coordinator); Halmstad University (Sweden); Mykolas Romeris University (Lithuania); University of Oulu (Finland); University of Siegen (Germany)
